PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY HENRY M. WHITNEY.

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

[A correspondent sends us the following selected lines. A more truthful picture of life in its seven stages was never drawn, than that portrayed in them.]

Life.

Seven years in childhood's sport and play,
Seven years in school from day to day,
Seven years at trade or college life,
Seven years to find a place and wife,
Seven years to pleasure's follies driven,
Seven years for fame, a wild goose chase,
Seven years for wealth, a hopeless race,
Seven years for hoarding for your heir,
Seven years in weakness spent and care.

VARIETY.

Depend not upon fortune but conduct.
Begin life with but little show, you may increase it afterwards.

Advise not what is the most pleasant but the most useful.

A man never forgets an insult to his pride or purse; a woman to her beauty or love.

A man loves when his judgment approves; a woman's judgment approves when she loves.

A HOUSEHOLD TRUTH.—A mother-in-law in an establishment is a rare good servant, but a precious bad mistress.

THE CONFESSION OF A FOND MOTHER.—Over indulgence, like too much sugar, only spoils what it was meant to sweeten.

It has been aptly said of Coleridge—the intellectual dreamer and sensual optimist—“that he was a singular mixture of the god and the clod.”

Diogenes being asked of what beast the bite was most dangerous, answered, “Of wild beasts, that of a slanderer; or tame, that of a flatterer.”

A dancing-master, in renewing his solicitations for patronage, wished to express his obligations for past favors, when the printer made him say—“Most respectfully offers his thanks.”

“Marriage resembles a pair of shears,” says Sydney Smith, “so joined that they cannot be separated, often moving in opposite directions, yet always punishing any one who comes between them.”

The editor of the Bloomington (Illinois) Times, says that he “lately looked upon a magnificent flock of grouse and thought of us.” There is no accounting for association of ideas. We shall be on hand about June.

The late eccentric Dr. Abernethy silenced a loquacious woman by the following expedient:—“Put your tongue out, madam.” The lady complied. “Now keep it there till I have done talking.”

The dearest ones become, the more horses get locked. Dolson says a shilling raw-hide will give as much power to his gray mare as twenty-five cents worth of corn. Dolson is becoming a philosopher.

A young lady says: “When I go to a theater I am very careless of my dress, as the audience are too attentive to the play to observe my wardrobe; but when I go to church I am very particular in my outward appearance, as most people go there to see how their neighbors dress and deport themselves.”

THEORY OF THE EYES.—Dark-blue eyes are most common in persons of delicate, refined, or effeminate nature; light-blue, and much more, gray eyes, in the hardy and active. Greenish eyes have generally the same meaning as the gray. Hazel eyes are the more usual indications of a mind masculine, vigorous, and profound.—Quarterly Review.

PUMPKIN PIES WITHOUT EGGS.—Prepare the pumpkin in the same manner you would when you use eggs; take a tablespoonful of flour to a pie—mix it with some milk—stir in the prepared pumpkin, and when baked you will not be able to tell any difference in the pies made with eggs and those made with flour.

GAY DRESS.—Beauty gains little, and homeliness and deformity lose much, by gaudy attire. Lysander knew this in part true, and refused the rich garments that the tyrant Dionysius proffered to his daughters, saying, “that they were fit only to make unhappy faces more remarkable.”—Zimmerman.

TRUISMS.—There are many truisms in the world. Take the following as a sample in every day life:—One new bonnet will make a young lady feel happy—very.

One “funny man” will bother a whole neighborhood.

One goose hiss will disturb a whole assembly.

One bad novel will waste whole reams of good paper.

One drop of oil will stop a hideous noise.

One “jolly row” will turn all the inhabitants of a street out of doors.

One pretty flirt will make a dozen plain girls unhappy for an entire evening.

One song will set thirty people talking.

SUNDAY.—Thank God for the Sabbath!—After six weary days of toil and care, and business anxiety, how delightful is the coming of the Sabbath—the wheel of Ixion ceases in its turning evolutions, the stone of Sisyphus pause upon the hill-side, the hack is ceased of its burden, the mind is lifted from the thoughts of daily cares and avocations to the contemplation of higher and more ennobling themes. The Sabbath is a glorious institution. To the beast at the plow, to the artisan in his workshop, to the chemist in his laboratory, to the professional man amid his books, and to the author with his pen—comes the Sabbath with a like blessing upon each.

Mrs. PARTINGTON ON SURPRISE PARTIES.—“They’re aw very well, surprise parties are,” said Mrs. Partington, laying her knitting work in her lap and putting her specks up on the roof of her cap, where they stood like two lutheran windows with a southern prospect. “They’re all very well where folks are prepared for ‘em—where they have the sandwiches and cold ham all cut and dried, with the lemonade in the gobs, and the coffee in the tureen all ready to be turned out; but where they come like an army, hungry as bears and hypochondriac and ready to eat one up, with no provisions made or cooked for ‘em, heaven help us! it is trying. People may smile as much as they may and say they are dreadful glad to see ‘em, and all that, but my opinion is that they would be glad to see ‘em a good way off all the time. But when they carry things with ‘em, as they do to ministers, and surprise ‘em with donations of doughnuts and silver plates, that is a different matter. When our minister lost money in railroad shares that cut him off short, his parish gin him a surprise party, and helped him along surprisingly. They are good when they’re managed like that.” She stopped as a beam of reflected sunshine came into her eyes with blinding force, filling her with surprise as the sun lay by the west, but could she have seen the sly look which like bore, on the opposite corner, as he thrust a piece of looking glass into his pocket, she would have no longer wondered. That boy was evidently a party to her surprise.—Boston Evening Gazette.
